To whom it may concern:

I would like to voice my complete dissatisfaction with the proposed settlement with Microsoft. It is clear to all sides of this matter that the original limits imposed on the company were ineffective and ignored. Re-imposing them will only prolong the stranglehold they have over the software industry.

As an American, a college student and a computer programmer, I beg you to revise your proposal. Please consider breaking the company apart. The only way that we, the software industry, can breath is if you force apart the 800 pound gorilla that now sits upon our chests.

Thank you for your time.
